

The functions implemented in the library and implementation from inbuilt libraries have some differences. These differences are there due to implementation and data types used in both libraries. Also these differences are in decimal part and very small.